Merton Brown to learn Friday if he still has his job as town clerk

20-year veteran suspended by Town Manager Madeleine Henley

By MICHAEL DANIELS

I'm just trying to keep a stiff upper lip until all this is finished," said Bethel town clerk Merton Brown, as he sat Monday in the den of his Broad Street home, taking calls of support.

Town Manager Madeleine Henley suspended Brown last week, from a job he has held for the past 20 years.

The suspension until Jan. 26, is with pay. But Brown is to meet again with Henley Friday to learn if she intends to proceed from suspension to termination.

Neither Brown nor Henley will divulge the reason for the suspension at this time. Brown, on the advice of his attorney, Henley because of the potential for exposing the town to a costly lawsuit.

The suspension appears to have resulted at least indirectly from an alleged shoplifting incident in Oct. of last year.

Brown was approached by a security personnel at Rich's Department Store in Portland, N.H. and charged with shoplifting a $149 battery.

Brown readily admits the battery was in his pocket when he left the store, but he contends it slipped from his hand into the pocket while he was reaching for change.

He paid for two other batteries, he said, and didn't notice the third was missing until he was confronted by store security.

But he also acknowledges a video-tape of the incident "is damaging," Gorham police chief Ron Devord said. "There is no question in the minds of Rich's security people, or in the minds of the police agency that a crime had been committed."

On Jan. 9, acting on the advice of an attorney, Brown chose not to contest the charge. He pleaded nolo contendere in Gorham District Court to a Class B misdemeanor, was found guilty, and paid a $250 fine.

A nolo plea is not technically an admission of guilt, and it allows the defendant to deny the allegations in other proceedings.

Brown is the second upper level town employee to be suspended by Henley in the past two months. In late November Police Chief Dale Bellman was suspended for three days with pay, then for two weeks without pay.

Brown began an appeal to the town selectmen (who are not involved in such personnel matters unless there is an appeal), but the chief and the town reached an agreement before the appeal was heard. Under the terms of the agreement, Bellman was docked only a single week's pay and he was not put on probation. According to the memo of agreement,

STORMS ARE A HABIT. The New Year began, along with numerous other snow and flooding, was preceded by banks again last week as a day of winter rains and flooding of more than two feet of snow that had never left the ground. The flooding closed Route 26 on Saturday morning, trapping some folks in Bethel and forcing early-bird skiers to detour through Rumford Point to reach Sunday River. The receding flood waters left behind broken sheets of ice clinging to the bank and nearby trees.

Snowmobilers' numbers, spending growing

Snowmobiling is a sport that has been around for decades, but it's only in the last few years that it's really taken off in Maine.

The number of snowmobilers in Maine has grown from the south, with the first snowmobiles coming from the Maine state line to the north.

He has suffered enough

We don't know now, and may never know for certain, whether Bethel Town Clerk Merton Brown deliberately filched a $2.19 battery from a Gorham department store.

If we take the worst view of the situation, Brown succumbed to a dumb impulse, got caught, and then back in the town where he lives and works, he tried to put the best face on the situation.

Brown claims steadfastly that he is innocent, that the description above does not apply to the sequence of events that led to his suspension. But even if it does apply, who among us has not, probably more than once, done something stupid, even illegal at the misdemeanor level, and then got caught up in the tangled web of denial or trying to cover our tracks?

And not just our job for it.

We also do not know all the factors Town Manager Madeline Henley is weighing as she makes her decision on Brown's future. Henley's silence on this score is entirely appropriate. Were she to talk prematurely the town could face a very costly law suit.

She must now decide whether Brown can remain in a position where he has served the town admirably for 20 years - and where he planned to serve for the remainder of his working life.

That's her call. And she knows things the public does not know but based on our partial knowledge of the situation, and our knowledge of the man, it certainly appears that by any reasonable scale of justice he has suffered enough - legal costs, heartache, and public humiliation for himself and his family.

Brown says that since he can tell the full story, it will be clear to all that he is not guilty, that he was merely caught up in an unfortunate set of circumstances.

We certainly hope that is the case, but with clear-cut resolutions set aside, Henley's task is no easier as the町ous efforts of the town to move toward a settlement continue.

But there are a number of important factors to consider in this case. The town manager is responsible for the town's financial

HONEST, KNOWLEDGEABLE, KIND

To the Editor:
I am writing to support Merton Brown to continue as town clerk of Bethel. I am a member of the Board of Selectmen that voted to appoint Merton to the position. During the past eight years, as a member of the Board, I have worked closely with him and came to rely on his opinion and judgment. I have learned that he is a very capable and genuinely helpful whenever I have had occasion to visit the town office or speak to him.

Merton is a man of substantial reputation for his knowledge of municipal affairs, particularly in the areas of the work of the clerk, tax collector, and treasurer. He currently holds state certification in all three areas. He has also participated in a number of occasions by professional association, including Clerk of the Year of 1994, and was president of the Maine Town Clerks Association.

I am writing this to let the town of Bethel know that Merton is a good town clerk. We are indeed fortunate to have such a helpful, kind and honest public servant in our town.

GETTING READY TO ROLL--A crew from ESPN was in the area recently filming a half-hour show on dog sledding and winter camping. Jeff Parsons of Bethel Outdoor Adventures assisted with the project. Filming took place in the area of Crocker Pond in the White Mountain National Forest. Parsons said ESPN does regular shows on out-of-the-ordinary sports. The idea for doing a show in this area came out of discussions between Parsons and a cable company representative from Connecticut, who contacted ESPN. Parsons does not yet know when the show will air. The crew is shown here at the trail head near Crocker Pond, at the beginning of the overnight camping trip. The dog team belongs to Tony Simpson, who works for Parsons.

WORKERS ARE US

To the Editor:

Hi! This is Jessie Coolidge and Katy Mullen, here at Telstar's Job Bank. Job Bank has been up and running for the last five years, with great success. Its main purpose is to set up students looking for work into community businesses or people looking for help.

Not only have we heard and seen positive things from the community, but from the students as well! Job opportunities in the past have ranged anywhere from: babysitting, winter work at Sunday River, summer employment at Storyland, and lots more. Whatever the job, there are always eager, well-qualified students waiting for that opportunity.

So if you have any questions or are looking for an employee of some sort, please call us at 824-2138. We always try to return your calls as quickly as possible, where we can talk one-on-one and discuss the qualities you are looking for in an employee, so we can find the perfect student for the job.

Also, for those of you parents who would rather have your teenagers working than watching T.V., we can solve the problem. Just send them down to the Guidance Office to leave their name. This way they have first chance when a new job comes in. You're right, it does seem easy! But we need you, the community, to give us calls to make it work. Do you need a babysitter, a part-time receptionist, someone to shovel your door-way? Whatever the job, give us a call at 824-2138.

Petition requests recall process

ANDOVER--A petition requesting a Town Meeting warrant article that would provide for the recall of elected municipal officials has been submitted by resident Sid Pew, according to selectman Dick Plantier. Plantier said Tuesday the petition had about 70 signatures. He said Andover is a non-charter town and therefore does not currently have a recall process. Pew also submitted a petition requesting an article directing that selectmen review the minutes of all past Town Meetings, and create updated and complete files of ordinances and policies approved by the town. That petition had 30 to 40 signatures. Plantier said he expected selectmen to vote at last night's regular meeting to put the articles on the March 2 Town Meeting warrant, provided the petitions are in legal form.

Fire protection problem for county

ANDOVER--A decision by selectmen not to provide fire protection for a proposed subdivision in an unorganized territory has left Oxford County Commissioners in a quandary. The county is responsible for arranging for fire protection. The Land Use Regulatory Commission (LURC) requested and got a letter from Fire Chief Ken Dixon saying Andover would provide coverage for a development by Bradford Bros., off the South Arm Road. Selectman Joe Madigan said selectmen are responsible for making the decision. When the development was scaled back from 40 units to 10, a new fire protection letter was needed -- this time from the selectmen, who denied it. Commissioner Fred Kennard said the county had not encountered such a situation before. He attributed the problem to Dixon and the selectmen's inability to get along.

Condo revaluation considered

NEWRY--Selectmen are considering putting an article on the annual Town Meeting warrant to fund a revaluation of Sunday River condominiums, according to administrative assistant Sylvia Gray. Gray said that condo owners feel their property is being assessed higher than it should be. Maina Equalization Consultants, Inc., a tax-assessing firm, has recommended a total revaluation of the town at an estimated cost of $50,000. But Gray said the firm will submit to selectmen another estimate and report to cover only the condominium revaluation, so that the issue may be resolved more quickly.

Oxford County tax rate set

PARIS--Oxford County commissioners set the 1996 mil rate for towns last week. It reflects a 2.3 percent increase over last year. Towns will pay 6.78 cents per $1,000 of property valuation. Last year's rate was 6.63 cents per $1,000. The total to be raised by taxation will be $2,091,472, up from $2,003,497 in 1995. County administrative assistant Carole Mahoney said the tax increase is due to salary hikes and related benefit costs. Most county employees received a 2-percent raise.

AmeriCorps to help area farmers

SOUTH PARIS--AmeriCorps members Anne Wilson and Rob Campbell are providing services through the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Oxford, Androscoggin and Sagadahoc counties. Their services range from educating students on environmental issues to providing workshops for local community members on water quality. A major part of their work involves providing agricultural producers with information and assistance. An informational meeting on the free services will be held at 1 p.m. in the USDA Farm Service Agency at 1 Main St. in South Paris. For more information call 743-7010.

School says sports a privilege

RUMFORD--A Mountain Valley High School student was denied his request to play basketball following his arrest and indictment on robbery and assault charges in December. Albert Steven Gonzales' attorney, Thomas Carey, confronted the SAD43 School Board about the issue at a meeting last week. He argued the school's extracurricular policy is too vague, and the administrators' decision to bar the boy from playing was based on alleged events. Superintendant Michael said after the meeting that the policy states that extracurricular participation is a privilege. "Since the reputation of a school program is often judged by the athletic program and its participants, high standards must be maintained," the policy reads. The school board refused to consider the issue either publicly or in executive session.

Snowmobiler dies near Rangeley Lake

RANGELEY--The body of a 24-year-old Massachusetts snowmobiler was found Sunday, hours after his sled crashed at the edge of Rangeley Lake. The body of Andrew Palmer of Sudbury, Mass., was found wedged between trees, according to Maine Warden Service spokesman. Investigators believe Palmer was speeding when he approached the shore and hit the brakes. The machine skidded sideways and crashed. Officials did not know whether Palmer died of the impact or froze to death. Warden were investigating whether alcohol may have been involved in the crash.

PORTLAND--Sunday River Brewing Company has opened another brewery in Portland. Known as Stone Coast Brewing, the business is located in the Gorham's Corner area. Four Stone Coast brews will be served, according to owner Grant Wilson. Wilson said the business will feature a combination of brewery, restaurant, and nightclub.

Sheriff qualifications stricter

PORLTAND--The state has adopted qualifications requiring candidates for sheriff to demonstrate their ability to manage patrol deputies and corrections officers. The new law requires candidates to prove they have the same level of law enforcement and management experience that Maine's municipal police chief applicants have had to demonstrate since 1976. Before the law, candidates simply had to prove they were residents of the county where they were seeking election, then gather signatures.

Lung association supports RFG

AUGUSTA--The American Lung Association of Maine has stated its continued support for the use of reformulated gasoline (RFG) as a means to reduce ozone levels in Maine. Dr. Lee Ann Baggott of the ALA said, "we are concerned about the effect RFG may have on certain individuals, but we do not believe the current medical evidence supports abandoning an effective ozone reduction strategy. We do know that ozone is one of the most common outdoor air triggers of asthma attacks and has been shown to cause damage to lung tissue in healthy individuals." Asthma prevalence in Maine increased by 40 percent between 1982 and 1992. The Clean Air Act of 1990 recommended use of RFG to improve air quality.

CONWAY, N.H.--The date for the Annual Bicycle Hillclimb up the Mt. Washington Auto Road has been moved from the weekend after Labor Day to late August. The move followed the cancellation of the race the past two years due to extreme weather conditions at the summit of Mt. Washington. The race has been called one of the 10 toughest bicycle hillclimbs in the U.S. It is a major fundraiser for the Tin Mountain Conservation Center of New Hampshire. This year's race is scheduled for Aug. 24, with a weather date of Aug. 25.

Bellman's offense was being unavailable for duty on a morning he had been scheduled to work.

Brown's suspension is the target of a petition circulating widely throughout town. The petition reads, in part, as follows: "Merton Brown has spent 20 years working for the Town of Bethel. His vast experience and delivery of service is important to the Town and to us. His job is a vital part of his life and the life of his wife and his three children."

The petition, which is addressed to Henley, goes on to urge her to allow him to keep his job. Several letters to the editor in this week's edition make a similar plea.

Should Henley decide to terminate Brown, he too has the option of appealing to the Board of Selectmen. He declined Monday to tell The Citizen if he planned to take that course.

He did say that once the matter of his employment was resolved, he was eager to go public with all the details of the events leading up to his suspension.

He said there have been no other criminal, or even traffic, infractions on his record. His wife, Martha, said she hoped Henley would "go on his past record of service." Both thanked the scores of people who have called to express their support.

Brown did speak briefly of the emotional impact of the ordeal on his children -- and on that subject his stiff upper lip failed him.

Questions raised on supervision in middle school art classes

A parent and a school director voiced strong objections Monday to the way Telstar Middle School handled overcrowding in an art class.

Newry director Debbie Gilbert and parent Becky Shaw of Bethel told the School Board that eight eighth-grade students from an overcrowded art class were placed in a portable classroom in early November.

They had five different staff members overseeing them during a three-week period, according to Shaw. On some days, she said, there was no supervision at all.

Gilbert said in a letter to the board that the art class had no curriculum, and the administration was slow in responding to parent complaints.

"I am very concerned that the administration allowed students of TMS to spend eight weeks of unproductive time without a curriculum," she wrote.

TMS principal Dick Blackman responded to the complaints in a memo to Supt. Ron Jenkins.

Blackman said the overcrowding was initially caused by loss of Unified Arts offerings, due to budget cuts. He said another staff person was assigned to the extra eight students.

"During the first quarter of the year the individual that was assigned to work with these students had some talent in arts and crafts and some artwork was taught," Blackman wrote.

When staffing changed again in November, as delayed staff layoffs from the budget cuts went into effect, the program had to be reorganized again.

Blackman said a plan for both seventh- and eighth-grade students has been drawn up for the third quarter. He said a combination of guidance and art skills will be taught, and students participating will do so voluntarily.

Commenting on the issue after the meeting, Jenkins said, "We are aware we were not as efficient in solving this as we should have been. I wish we could have done it more quickly."

Rescuers say cell-phone users too often cry wolf

Rescue workers in the White Mountain National Forest say valuable time and resources are being wasted on inexperienced hikers with cellular telephones who wander into the mountainous wilderness believing help is but a phone call away.

"These cellular telephones have created an abuse of the search and rescue system," said Ron Alie, chief of law enforcement for the New Hampshire Fish and Game Department.

There has been a rash of incidents this year where people have gone into the WMNF thinking they can call authorities any time they run into trouble on the trail, Alie said.

He used a weekend episode to illustrate his point.

A Massachusetts couple camped on Mount Flume in snow and freezing rain late Friday night, and continued to the summit Saturday. That night, the couple's water supply froze and the man woke up shaking uncontrollably, Alie said.

"At about 5 a.m. Sunday morning, we get a 911 call from the girl saying she thinks the man is suffering from hypothermia," he said.

They could not get their new heating stove ignited and tried to warm themselves with candles, he said.

Rescuers started up the mountain Sunday morning, then backed off when the woman called back and said her companion felt better and the couple would walk off the mountain.

"We have an obligation to respond to calls for help, and we will," Alie said. "But people need to understand that it's their responsibility to try everything possible to save themselves first."

From the Bethel Police log:

Police enforce bedtime

On Jan. 18 at 1:22 a.m., a caller reported several subjects fighting at her apartment. When police arrived the complainant said she had been no fight but she had been arguing with her son, who did not want to go to bed. The son acknowledged there had been an argument. The officer sent him to bed after telling him to listen to his mother.

Wednesday, Jan. 17

At 4:45 p.m., a Church Street resident reported that at 11 a.m. his wife left their residence, and on returning at 11:38 she discovered the back outside door open and the door knob to the inside door torn off. She went out again at 12:20 p.m., and on returning at 4 p.m. she discovered the front door was open. The complainant said nothing appeared to have been taken. He wanted the incident on file.

Thursday, Jan. 18

At 1:06 a.m., a Bethel Park Apartments resident reported that at 1:03 a.m. an unidentified female knocked on her door and said she had been raped. The caller said the woman was very intoxicated. She was last seen walking from the complex. The officer spoke with a man who had also spoken with the woman. He said he did not recognize her, but that she was intoxicated. Police were not able to locate her.

At 1:36 a.m., a Bethel Park Apartments resident reported he had been threatened by a man who had brandished a shotgun and said he (the complainant) was "dead." The subject was apparently upset with his ex-girlfriend's past/present relationship with the complainant. The woman also lives in the apartment complex. The officer gave the complainant a statement form and advised him to complete it in the morning, because he was too intoxicated to do so at the time.

Friday, Jan. 19

At 1:58 a.m., Sunday River security requested that police check on the well-being of a female who was reportedly enroute home to Mexico on foot. The security person was concerned because of the heavy fog and lack of visibility. Police checked the Route 2/Bridge St. area with negative results. At 2:04 a.m. police were advised that the subject was at the Big Apple on Railroad Street. The officer spoke with the woman, who had been drinking, but she did not appear to be visibly intoxicated. He suggested she not walk home. The woman said her mother was enroute to pick her up.

Saturday, Jan. 20

At 4:35 p.m., a complainant reported that two females and one male had entered the Mt. Mann jewelry store on Main Street. He said they acted oddly, and then left. He noticed a silver bracelet was missing, and possibly a pair of earrings. He said he did not see the subjects take anything, but felt the items were taken. The complainant said he had spoken with one of the females previously, and she told him she was a student at Gould Academy. The bracelet was sterling silver with pink, blue and green on the top, and was valued at $30.

FROM THE

Bethel Town Office

A savings of 19 percent annually for the disposal of demolition debris has just been discovered. The town will be signing a contract with Grimm's Industries for the next year. This company has been contracted by Bethel in the past and owns a great service record.

The disposal of the demolition debris is one of the most costly components of Bethel's solid waste stream. The town is billed for three separate services: hauling, tipping and container rental.

Historically, the hauling charges have been the most expensive part of the bill. This is the major area where Grimm's will be saving the taxpayers money.

The demolition debris tonnage is up by 27 percent, compared to this time last year. Therefore, its disposal cost will continue to be a large component of the solid waste budget. This new contract significantly reduces and controls the operational costs. On the other hand, the cost of tipping fees can only be controlled at the source of generation. Generators are the parties who own this responsibility. Demolition debris needs to be reduced at the source. Many of these materials can be reused. Please contact the town office for more information.

Greenwood town manager vote:

Town officials overlooked state meeting requirement

By ALISON ALOISIO

Herb Dunham sees it as incompetence. Fran Piccirillo sees it as one more reason why Greenwood should hire a town manager.

Greenwood selectmen, by law, should have scheduled a special Town Meeting to reconsider the town manager issue.

But they didn't -- due to an oversight, they said. Instead, the revote had been scheduled for the March annual Town Meeting.

Chair Marie Bartlett informed townspeople of the mistake following a special Town Meeting last week.

Greenwood voted at the March 1995 annual Town Meeting to adopt a town manager form of government.

In August, however, resident Sam Chittick circulated a petition asking that the vote be reconsidered, and selectmen scheduled it for March.

But Bartlett told the dozen voters it last week's meeting that town clerk Phyllis Coolidge had informed her the manager revote was referring to a special Town Meeting several years ago. At that meeting, voters approved giving assessing power to selectmen rather than having a single appointed assessor.

Bartlett said later the earlier meeting was required under the same law because it involved changing the assessor from an appointed to an elected position.

She said selectmen chose to wait until the March meeting for the manager revote because special meetings were generally frowned upon by townspeople. She also said there would be a larger turnout for the regular meeting.

"We completely forgot along the way. I wish Phyllis or Sam had said something," she said. "It's obviously ing for the position.

Bartlett said that town clerk Phyllis Coolidge knew of the 90-day law, and "she thought we knew. Sam Chittick also knew and he chose not to say anything. The three of us (selectmen) were the only ones who didn't know," she said.

Dunham, an opponent of the town manager government, didn't buy that explanation.

"I think you must have known the law. You had the law when you did away with me. I wondered why you waited eight or nine months to have a meeting," he said.

Dunham, the former assessor for Greenwood, was referring to a special Town Meeting several years ago. At that meeting, voters approved giving assessing power to selectmen rather than having a single appointed assessor.

Bartlett said later the earlier meeting was required under the same law because it involved changing the assessor from an appointed to an elected position.

She said selectmen chose to wait until the March meeting for the manager revote because special meetings were generally frowned upon by townspeople. She also said there would be a larger turnout for the regular meeting.

"We completely forgot along the way. I wish Phyllis or Sam had said something," she said. "It's obviously sight) certainly wasn't deliberate."

"Why should someone have to come in and remind you?" asked Dunham.

Piccirillo was quick to come to the selectmen's defense.

"Isn't this a reason to have a town manager? Because these three poor people didn't know the law? A town manager has time to study the law. You're beating on these people because they didn't know. They made a mistake -- let it go, Herb," he said.

Dunham replied that he was only speaking his mind. Neither Coolidge nor Chittick was at the meeting.

Petition not binding

Bartlett also said Hole told her the selectmen were under no legal obligation to hold a reconsideration vote at all, and that the petition was not worded in such a way to be legally binding.

"He said it was left up to the selectmen. We asked if we could still go ahead and hold the vote, even if the petition was illegal. He said 'yes,' and we decided to do it," she said.

But because no special meeting can be held, Hole said that even if the town turns thumbs down on a manager in March -- either by revoking funding or an outright vote on the question -- Greenwood would still technically be under a town manager form of government until 1997.

As a result, the town clerk, tax collector, treasurer, registrar of voters and road commissioner would have to be appointed for the following year, rather than elected, because it would have been the manager's responsibility to appoint those officials.

Alan Seames is the current road commissioner; Coolidge holds all the other positions.

Selectmen Harry Swan suggested townspeople might want to go ahead with the town manager, at least for a few months. He said a reconsideration vote could be held at least 90 days before the 1997 Town Meeting, if voters were dissatisfied with the manager.

Candidates interviewed

Following the mandate of last year's Town Meeting, selectmen interviewed four town manager candidates Saturday. Bartlett said the town would not enter into a contract with the successful candidate, until the town votes again in March.

Grant money accepted

Those in attendance at last week's meeting voted to accept $20,000 in state grant money to repair an abutment on the Kendall Brook bridge in the Irish Neighborhood.

The town had already paid to fix half of the bridge.

Epic Brass at Gould

The Monday Club Academy Performing Arts Series will feature an evening of music performed by the Boston-based ensemble "Epic Brass." The performance, which is open to the public, will take place at Bethel Auditorium on Thursday, Jan. 25, at 7:30 p.m.

The quartet, now in its second decade of performing, will present an eclectic repertoire ranging from renaissance and baroque selections to classical, sacred, and popular music. They have performed at such places as Carnegie Hall and the Kennedy Center, as well as numerous stages in Europe, Canada and Bermuda, breathing new life into traditional brass pieces and making 20th century works accessible to brass of all ages.

The members of Epic Brass place a great deal of importance on education. In addition to over 100 concert series, 200 amateur educational performances, school concerts, master classes, and workshops, the group performs. Prior to the Thursday evening performance, it will present two concert classes and a special Academy. They will present two concert classes and a special Academy for the Monday Club Concert at Crescent Park Auditorium, the performance from Andover and Woodstock Elementary schools, and a piano for Crescent Park students.

Admission to the concert is $10 for adults and $5 for children, and is available at the door. For further information, call 207-824-5885.

THE DOCTOR IS IN--The Riverside Family Practice on the Northwest Belch Road opened for business on Jan. 2. Family physician Dr. Thomas O'Meara and physician's assistant Cathy Dorr will offer patients 24-hour medical coverage. The practice is part of the Swift River Family Practice, affiliated with the Rumford Community Hospital. O'Meara said the affiliation will allow his practice to offer other services as well -- such as obstetric care from Rumford physicians who will come to Bethel on a regular basis. He also said patients who have had care through Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway may continue that relationship, since he is on the staff at both hospitals. Regular hours at the Riverside practice will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with evening and Saturday hours planned eventually. An open house will be held on Saturday, Jan. 27. Shown here with O'Meara are LPN Sootie Brown and receptionist Barbara Larsen.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estelle, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 8th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pincham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies, in a physician only in special urgent cases. By trial and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pincham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so plentifully provides in the harvest fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds, so, if we but take the pains to find them in the woods and herbs of the field, there are many which are specially designed to cure the various diseases and maladies of the body, and it was her pleasure to search them out and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Out of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal root and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the females and Lydia E. Pincham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured it became quite popular among them.

HOBBY OR BUSINESS?

The IRS defines a hobby as an activity not engaged in for profit. For taxpayers who are engaged in a sideline business, the distinction between "hobby" and "business" can be significant come tax return filing time.

Business losses are deductible; hobby losses are generally deductible only to the extent of hobby income (with the additional limitation imposed on them as miscellaneous itemized deductions subject to the 2% of adjusted gross income floor).

The tax law contains a presumption that an activity is a business, not a hobby, if it is profitable in three out of five consecutive years (two out of seven consecutive years for activities involving horses). Some factors which help determine whether you have a hobby or a business include:

- Whether you conduct the activity in a businesslike manner.
- How much time and effort you spend on the activity.
- Whether there is a reasonable expectation that the business will be profitable.
- Whether losses in this activity continue beyond the normal time to bring such an operation into profitable status.
- Whether the occasional profits in relation to losses and the total investment are realistic.
- Whether you have substantial income from sources other than this activity.
- Whether the activity has elements of personal pleasure or recreation.

Speaking of "sharp contrasts" zero and minus zero temperatures the first two weeks of the New Year and last Friday temperatures in the thirties and fifties at 4:30 p.m. - what a sharp contrast!

There was a very interesting program on day last week, on the TV about a reporter interviewed a couple of people who have lived in the same house since they were born and still live there. One of the persons being Mrs. Mary Dwyer Avash - a neighbor of mine. She has a daughter. She has worked many years for the state in helping other blind people, teaching them how to cope with their handicap, even to handle their chores. Mary will retire at the end of this month. She slipped and fell one day last week. He didn't break any bones but got a lot and bruises and was lame from it.

Jim Morrison is at home now after being in the Maine Medical Center for surgery. He

Craig Adams has been in the hospital for acute appendicitis and had to have surgery for it.

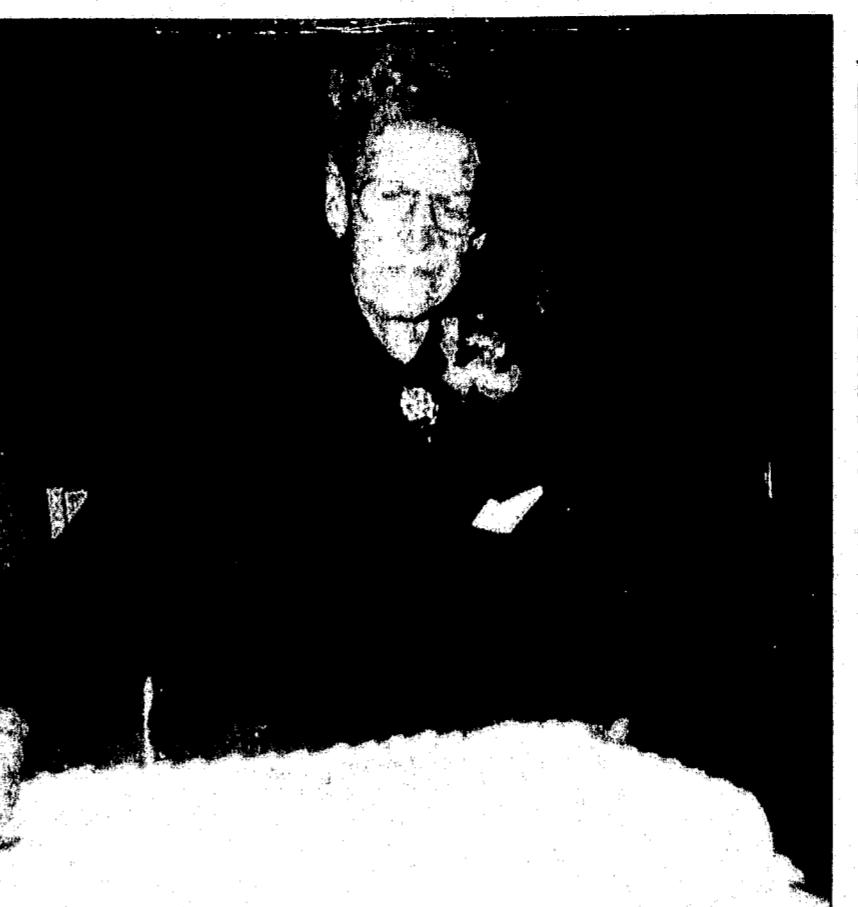

I do hope you people will get along all right.

Seven members of the East Stoneham Congregational Church UCC met at the home of Mary Glover for their annual meeting. The same officers were voted in for the following year. A "supper planning" meeting is planned for March 7 at the home of Mary Glover and the next Stoneham church meeting is planned for March 14 at the church. The minister's and clerk's annual reports were finished and read. The treasurer's report was handed out and read, discussed and accepted. A letter was read from the Maine Conference - United Church of Christ - teller of a financial award to the Oxford County United Parishioners, which will be sent to them, which will help cover their annual losses. Please contact Sue Mirell at 847-4444 or 847-4888 for more information or to sign up as a volunteer or for more details.

GLADYS KILGORE celebrates her 100th birthday.

keep warm keeping other people warm. We have already gotten more snow this year so far than in the past few years at this time.

On Sunday, Jan. 14, Gladys Kilgore of East Stoneham enjoyed a birthday party in honor of her 100th birthday on Jan. 18. This was organized by her niece, Henrietta Lepere of Freeport. She enjoyed lunch of finger rolls, chips, coffee, and birthday cake, etc., with Henrietta, Heather and Eleanor.

During the afternoon many friends stopped by with congratulations to her and to share some birthday cake, etc., with her. She had received congratulations from the Maine State Governor and Maine State Senate.

She married Leon Kilgore in 1929 and moved to South Paris, where he worked in the local shoe shops. In 1947 Leon and Gladys moved back to East Stoneham to the house where she was born. Leon died in 1987. Gladys stayed on at their home and kept busy as a cook for two wealthy ladies at Virginia Lake.

People from Harvest Hills did a video of her and brought a little dog equal to her age in dog years. She held him in her arms and loved him. She loves all animals, especially her Siamese cat "Ching," who keeps her company. She is content with her lifestyle and hopes to keep things the way they are.

She is a long time member of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, also the East Stoneham Congregational Church.

I won't be traveling to Lewiston often this winter for psoriasis treatments. The weather has been nice. I'm going to curtail them.

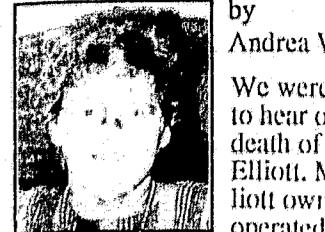

One day last week, when I was at the post office, I stopped at West Paris General Store. A couple of things, Roy Cox, there having a cup of coffee, was looking quite well and I chatted with him for minutes.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports society studies history on the state, national and world. Many foreign countries are going to learn about, and the history of New England is important. Everyone is involved in something different in this of learning, but we can notes. The society offers educational programs. The museum contains treasures and artifacts. I recently read a book on W.B. Yeats.

Mr. Billings has also given a colorful vase to the society. The society has information on citizens and landmarks of Woodstock in its museum. For did you know that many singers and musicians came to Woodstock? The society has autographed pictures. We also had a guy president's daughter, an Episcopal bishop, and an author in town.

We were to hear of the death of Elliott. My father, who owned and operated a hardware store in West Paris for many years, goes out to his many friends. He will be missed.

I read in the Sunday paper that Emily Phillips was high scorer in Telstar basketball game Livermore Falls. She scored points in the game. Good Emily.

I also read in the paper that Chandler is playing real good basketball for the Telstar Varsity basketball team. Becky is a student at Telstar High School.

The Adult Learning Center at Ethel Bisbee School in Bethel has recently acquired an Internet connection for use by students and staff. This addition completes the commitment to technology begun in 1992 with the addition of the computer lab at the Learning Center through a grant from The Betterment Fund. The Learning Center is now able to communicate with other locations in SAD44 using e-mail. Recently John Aron, a student at the Center, exchanged e-mail messages with his daughter, a student at Crescent Park School.

Instructors Lee Dolleman and Jeanette Baldridge, and Learning Center volunteer Frank Gibson, are orienting Learning Center students to the Internet. Students are able to communicate with other adult learners, to undertake research projects, and to access a variety of informational sources regarding employment.

The Learning Center has also added a variety of tutorial materials to assist learners in studying popular software programs on an individual basis. Tutorials are available for WordPerfect for DOS or Windows, Lotus 1-2-3, Microsoft Works, and Mavis Beacon Teaches Typing. This is an excellent solution for anyone who is unable to schedule a regular adult education class. Tutorials may be used during regular Center hours.

Monday through Thursday mornings 9 to noon, and Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, 5:30-8:30. Call the Adult Education office, 824-2780, to register.

"What the Heck is the Internet?" is the title of an upcoming seminar sponsored by Adult Education in the Telstar Region on Tuesday, Jan. 30 from 7-9 at the Crescent Park School. Peter Kuzik will provide an introduction for those who are feeling out of the loop in the new electronic age. The session will demystify such things as e-mail, newsgroups, home pages, and more. The fee for the seminar is $5. Another one-session Internet introduction will be held on Tuesday, February 6. To register for either date, call the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

The Telstar Talks are a new feature of the SAD44 Adult Education program this winter. The series of one-session programs features members of the Telstar High School faculty, and highlights special areas of expertise and interest. The programs will be held on Tuesday evenings from early February through mid-March and may be attended individually. To register for any of the programs, call the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

The first Telstar Talk will feature Suzanne Taylor of the English Department on 19th century British novels. Those attending will experience the kind of excitement which characterize Mrs. Taylor's classes and will have the opportunity to share her love of this period of literature. The program will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 6 from 7-9 at Telstar. The fee is $5.

On Tuesday, Feb. 13, Ken Nye of the Telstar Science Department will explore the topic of Evolution: Where did we come from? This topic has fascinated scholars from earliest times and Nye will present an overview of various theories and their scientific basis. The program will be held at Telstar from 7-9. The fee is $5.

Telstar Talks following the February School Vacation will include the poetry of Robert Frost with Rodney Abbott, fly-fishing in literature with Steve Vachon, and the presidential race with Charlie Raymond.
